As of 1 September 1952 fishermen in Sinch'ang-myŏn (128,30, 40-09) (DV-5744), Pukch'ong-gun, were permitted to fish only between the hours of 8 p.m. and 10 p.m. During the rest of the day their oars were locked in a fishery company's warehouse which had been commandeered by local police. The fishermen had to obtain a fishing permit daily at 3 p.m. from the police, get the oars from the warehouse, and clear the permit with the North Korean army coastal defense unit in the area. Fishing boats were not permitted to go further than 2 kilometers off shore.
